Described by Victory Review magazine as "one of the Pacific Northwest's finest groups," the all-female quartet Misty River has distinguished itself in the up-and-coming Americana market with compelling harmonic vocals backed by fresh acoustic arrangements. Misty River's debut album, Rising, continues to receive widespread national and international airplay since its release in June 2000, and independent book and music stores report Rising as one of their top-selling albums.

Showcasing the budding songwriting talent of its members, this beautiful, introspective collection of original and traditional songs independently sold over 5,000 copies prior to receiving a distribution contract with BDC in July 2002. Guest artists include mandolin extraordinaire John Reischman and bass virtuoso Glen Moore.

Misty River tours nationally and has performed hundreds of shows including Tennessee's Dollywood, California's Strawberry Music Festival, Silver Dollar City, and Seattle's Northwest Folklife Festival.

Reviews of Rising speak to its appeal:

"This music is heavily steeped in the bluegrass, folk and country traditions. But there's also a modern edge which resembles the neo-bluegrass style of Alison Krauss or EmmyLou Harris."—Minor7th.com (Acoustic Guitar's Webzine)

"If you are in the mood for something outside the bluegrass mainstream, you could hardly do better than this very attractive album....The four women are excellent singers and their voices blend like milk and honey."—Bluegrass Unlimited Magazine

"When these four women weave their lovely harmonies, it is spine tingling."—Jeff Douglas, Oregon Public Broadcasting-TV
* Allen Price, Victory Review Magazine
